

A photograph of a desert landscape with sand dunes under a clear blue sky. A small, green, spiky plant is visible on the left side of the frame.

“the calls to adventure have been answered,
and the labyrinth was thoroughly walked;

in all journeys:
trials were surpassed,
abominations were slain,
and shackles were removed.

the fires of life burnt the heart,
the illusions played the mind,
from which the soul was thus reborn.

and now that the requests have been made,
and the forms have been renounced,

hear o God my sacrifices,
for I have finally returned home.

so now it is time,
reveal her to me on this hour;

and if the revelation is in the past,
confirm what the heart knows already.”